Prices generate a lot of optimism

We used to sell quite a few yearlings every year for a woman. She was a widow, but she was plenty strong-willed after becoming single. We sold 100 steers and heifers for her, and she had one hump-backed steer, so we wrote it on the ticket, and of course it brought less.

The minute she picked up her check, I got a call. She let me know that she didn't have a hump-backed calf, and that she had never had a hump-backed calf, and I better not ever think that she had a hump-backed calf ever again. So, every time she sold cattle after that, if she ever had a hump-backed calf we might have written crippled or we might have written off-colored, but we never wrote hump-backed again.

I'm not sure whether the big push in the slaughter cow and bull market was a result of the million plus acres burned in Texas plus plenty in Oklahoma or not, but the market definitely got a big push right after that. I heard of one slaughter bull bringing $170 per hundredweight, and we had several killing cows that brought more than $130 per hundredweight.

We have a lot of optimism in the whole cattle industry. I heard of some heifers weighing 630 pounds that brought $284 per hundredweight, which figures to $1,792.35, and some steers weighing 833 pounds that brought $259 per hundredweight, which is $2,157.47. That is a pretty healthy price on both deals.

We are hoping for rain, and particularly on the burned area. A few days ago the weather app showed a better chance this week, but the closer we get our chances seem to get less. However, I know the weatherman is not in control, so please pray for rain.

I told a friend of mine when I die I want to be buried between a lawyer and a politician. He said, "Why would you want that?" I said, "Well, Jesus died between two thieves, and I wanted to know what it felt like."

A friend of mine said when he died he wanted to die with his boots on. I asked him why, and he said, "It will be less painful when I kick the bucket."

There was a cowboy who rode into town on Friday, and three days later he left on Friday again. You ask how is that possible? Friday was his horse's name.

"Mike has a simple formula to prove the value of the oiler. 'If the cattle aren't swatting flies, they are eating grass, making milk and putting pounds on the baby. And if the babies aren't swatting flies, he's retaining that weight to go to market with. That's all you've got to sell is weight of the cow.'"
