Futures Up, Sick Calves, Praying for Rain

by: Jerry Nine – Woodward, Okla.

As we start 2026 cattle auctions are back in full swing. Last week we got a big push up in cattle futures with a lot of the feeder contracts up as much as $7.00 to $8.00 cut. Fat cattle contracts were up mostly $3.50 to $4.40 cut with this February loading the pack at $236.00. For what some calf and feeder buyers have given price wise they are going to need a very good market when they sell their cattle.

A lot of cattlemen this past fall have had a lot of sickness and death losses. TO me it was a lot harder than most years to find medicine that these calves could respond to. I had several that would respond some then fall back down again several times then after you had spent no telling how many dollars, they would kick the bucket. Thank goodness we had a very good year financially in the cattle business previously.

Our area needs rain with a lot of the wheat showing definite signs of it. Looks like we have a chance one day this week, but otherwise weather men give us little hope for the next 10 days. However I know for sure the weather men are not in control of that.

We have a lot going on with the government with some on the left talking about socialism as if it is what we need. I don't know about you, but I like America being the greatest land of all to where we have the opportunity to succeed or fail and not someone handing me what they want to give me. I am 100% against drugs and 100% people that hate America. How about those people that hate America go back to their country and speak out like they do here. If they did, we wouldn't have to listen to them again.

The preacher said Sunday if it doesn't challenge you it doesn't change you. You may think it isn't much but sometimes the little things you do are the most influential things in a person's life.

I saw my doctor yesterday and showed her the rash I have on my rear. She just ignored me and kept pushing her cart at Walmart.

I finally fixed that annoying noise in my car. I just opened the door and pushed her out.

Editor's note: The views expressed here are the author's own and do not represent the view of The Penny News. Jerry Nine, Woodward, Oklahoma, is a lifetime cattleman who grew up on his family's ranch near Slapout, Oklahoma.

Moore Says Budget Hearings Will Shape Final Weeks of January at the Capitol

January 11, 2026 • Oklahoma City, OK — Oklahoma House Speaker Pro-Tem Anthony Moore says the next three weeks at the State Capitol will be critical in shaping budget decisions and policy priorities for the upcoming legislative session. Moore, who represents District 57 in western Oklahoma, shared the update during an interview on Exploring Energy on KECO 96.5 FM. According to Moore, budget hearings are set to begin this week, followed by a concentrated stretch of committee work through the end of January. He said lawmakers will be juggling both policy and fiscal bills during that time. “Those last two weeks of January are really session extended,” Moore said. “You’ve got policy bills and fiscal bills. Fiscal bills go through appropriations and budget, and all of the policy subcommittees will have hearings the third week of January.” Moore said the fourth week of January will focus on what he called the “big five” state agencies, which traditionally receive the most attention during budget discussions. Despite ongoing revenue conversations, Moore said the overall outlook for the state budget remains steady. “We’re expecting a pretty flat year on budget,” he said. “We’re not cutting, so I’m pretty happy about that.” Moore noted that Governor Kevin Stitt has called for flat budget requests across state agencies, even as lawmakers face more than $1.7 billion in requested increases. Moore said that figure is unrealistic and that legislators are instead looking for ways to manage spending while returning money to taxpayers. “Obviously that’s not going to happen,” Moore said. “The question becomes, where can we cut and give back to taxpayers.” During the interview, Moore also highlighted his working relationship with fellow western Oklahoma lawmaker Nick Archer. Moore credited the partnership with helping represent the region effectively during demanding legislative sessions. “I could not ask for a better partner than Nick Archer,” Moore said. “Our strong suits are different and we play off each other well. Our word is our bond, and we’re pulling the rope the same direction.” As Speaker Pro-Tem, Moore serves on every House committee, a role he described as nonstop. “There will be thousands of bills,” Moore said. “There are no days off on the calendar.” The Oklahoma legislative session formally begins in early February, with committee work and budget negotiations already well underway.

John Cook Sworn In as New Elk City Police Chief

January 8, 2025 • Elk City, OK — Following the retirement of longtime Elk City Police Chief Eddie Holland, the City of Elk City has officially named John Cook as its new Police Chief.

Cook was sworn in on Dec. 31 and officially began his duties on Jan. 1. He takes over leadership of the Elk City Police Department after Holland stepped down from the role while continuing to work with the city in a different capacity.

Cook brings 28 years of law enforcement experience to the position. His career began in 1998 through a reserve program, followed by more than a decade working for the State of Missouri. In 2011, Cook returned to Oklahoma and joined law enforcement in Elk City.

Originally trained as a biologist, Cook said his path into law enforcement came unexpectedly while working for the Oklahoma Department of Wildlife Conservation. As part of his work in endangered species recovery in McCurtain County, he was cross-trained in law enforcement, discovered a passion for the work, and chose to pursue it full time.

A Granite High School graduate, Cook said returning to western Oklahoma was driven by family. He and his family came back to help care for aging relatives and take over the family farm north of Granite, which recently reached centennial farm status after more than 100 years in the family. Cook continues to farm while serving as police chief.

As he steps into the department’s top role, Cook said residents should expect continuity rather than sweeping change. He plans to make minor adjustments to the department’s organizational structure, with a focus on improving communication throughout the ranks.

“I almost refer to it as a chain of communication instead of a chain of command,” Cook said, emphasizing the importance of information flowing clearly both up and down the department.

Cook said his primary goals include continuing successful programs already in place, particularly the Citizens Police Academy, which he helped develop. He also hopes to expand public engagement and maintain the strong level of community support the department currently enjoys.

The department is also nearing completion of its new police facility. According to Cook, the building itself is essentially finished, with the final step being installation of a Next Generation 911 system. The upgraded system, funded through a government grant, will allow features such as text-to-911 and live video streaming for emergency calls. Installation is currently scheduled for the first two weeks of February, pending coordination with state and federal partners to ensure a seamless transition without any lapse in emergency coverage.

Former chief Eddie Holland is not fully retired and continues to work with the city. Cook said Holland is overseeing opioid abatement initiatives, managing and directing the use of federal funds dedicated to combating opioid-related issues for the benefit of the community.

In addition to Cook’s appointment, the department announced two promotions. Scott Goodman has been promoted to Major and will serve as Assistant Police Chief, while Brad George has been promoted to Captain of Patrol.
