Dry Land & Questionable Cattle

by: Jerry Nine – Woodward, Okla.

Last year I sold a guy 10 black pairs. The heifers were very nice and gentle, however the one mother had a new calf and she didn't like his grown daughter getting close to that calf so the heifer took after her. She ran around the hay feeder grabbing it along the way and pulled a muscle in her shoulder. Now this year he comes in for breakfast and announces that I sold him a lesbian cow. He said she is nursing another cow. Only in a small town with us hicks in the sticks and often we have to make our own humor.

It is going to be very interesting as it seems there are a lot of heifers being bred for cows. I think a lot of ranchers and grass buyers have seen what some young pairs are bringing and they have decided to try to cash in on that market too. The only problem is that it is 6 months to a year away. We also have a very big area that is dry. The weather can make or break the market. It could also be dry and force some to sell their cows then start raining and that same rancher needing to buy back. Time will tell, or in the dry area may not be saving heifers to breed.

There are quite a lot of middle aged and older cows going to the feedlot with a lot feeding them 70 days or more. When feed is cheap it allows the cattleman with a lot more options. And all goes good until it doesn't. Plus with a lot of feedlots feeding their cattle to huge weights before they slaughter them there may be more demand for these fat cows out of the feedlot often referred to as a white fat cow.

How corrupt is Congress? You can get 70 Senators to approve sending American tax dollars to Ukraine but you can't get 51 Senators to approve passing Election Integrity Laws.

Editor's note: The views expressed here are the author's own and do not represent the view of The Penny News. Jerry Nine, Woodward, Oklahoma, is a lifetime cattleman who grew up on his family's ranch near Slapout, Oklahoma.

Burglary at Elk City store results in theft of 12 firearms

April 14, 2024 • Elk City, OK — The Elk City Police Department is asking for the public’s help in identifying a suspect following a burglary that resulted in the theft of multiple firearms.

The burglary occurred in the early morning hours of Sunday, April 12, 2026, at Totally Outdoors, 119 N. Main St. According to police, 12 firearms were stolen during the incident.

Authorities said all of the stolen firearms have been entered into the system as stolen, and serial numbers are on file.

The firearms reported stolen include two Smith & Wesson SD9 2.0 9mm pistols, four Taurus G3 9mm pistols, one FN 502 .22 caliber pistol, one Smith & Wesson M&P 10mm pistol, one Taurus G3C 9mm pistol, one Sig Sauer P365 9mm pistol, and two Smith & Wesson M&P 9mm pistols.

Investigators have obtained video footage from two cameras inside the store. While the suspect has not been identified, police said the footage may help someone recognize the individual based on clothing, movements, or other characteristics.

The Elk City Police Department’s Criminal Investigations division is handling the case.

Anyone with information is encouraged to contact Detective Kirby Jones at 580-225-1212 or by email at jonesk@elkcity.com. Tips can also be submitted through private message to the department.

Archer Amendment Targets Data Center Water Use as Groundwater Bill Advances

April 13, 2026 • Oklahoma City, OK — A bill originally focused on groundwater permitting took a new turn recently as state lawmakers added provisions aimed at regulating water use by data centers, with a Western Oklahoma legislator leading the push.

Rep. Nick Archer, R-Elk City, chairman of the House Energy and Natural Resources Committee, required an amendment addressing data center water consumption before allowing Senate Bill 259 to be heard during the committee’s final meeting of the legislative session. “I’ll be candid with the committee,” Archer said. “I said, hey, if you wanna hear this bill, this amendment has to be included.”

The amendment targets how data centers cool their systems when using groundwater. Under the proposal, facilities would be required to use closed-loop systems or other low-consumption cooling methods such as dielectric cooling fluid or air cooling. Traditional open-air evaporative cooling systems, which consume large amounts of water, would not be allowed if groundwater is the primary cooling source.

Archer said the goal is to protect a critical resource. “Groundwater is a precious resource, we need to protect that,” he said, noting that widely cited high water usage figures for data centers are tied to evaporative cooling methods.

The amendment was adopted without opposition from committee members.

The underlying bill, authored by Rep. Carl Newton, R-Cherokee, and Sen. Brent Howard, focuses on requiring water meters for high-volume groundwater users.

Newton said the measure is a response to concerns from constituents and aims to provide better tracking of water usage across the state.

“This is serious. This water is essential to life, essential to everyday life,” Newton said. “All I’m asking is that we measure that much water so we know exactly how much they’re using.”

The legislation would apply only to high-volume users and would not impact domestic water use. Oversight would fall to the Oklahoma Water Resources Board, with usage limits based on a rolling five-year average that accounts for regional differences in rainfall and water availability.

The bill also allows for flexibility, permitting users to exceed their annual allocation by up to 150 percent in a given year, as long as their five-year average remains within permitted limits.

Meters required under the proposal are estimated to cost between $1,750 and $4,000.

Some lawmakers raised concerns about potential impacts on agricultural operations, but Newton emphasized the long-term risks facing the state’s water supply, particularly in western Oklahoma.

Citing research from Oklahoma State University, Newton said portions of the Ogallala Aquifer could be depleted within decades.

“If we cease to have water out there, we cease to exist out there,” he said.

The House Energy and Natural Resources Committee voted 8-0 to advance SB259 with a “do pass” recommendation.
