Praying, Praying, Praying for Rain

by: Jerry Nine – Woodward, Okla.

$2,125.00 per head. I guess they sold the calves early to try to get more of the 2 year old heifers to breed back. A set of charolais steers at 1038 pounds brought $3316.00 per head.

My wife just stopped and said, “You weren’t even listening were you?” I thought that was a strange way to start a conversation.

One man said when he and his wife first started dating about 50 years ago. Another gal was looking at him and his girlfriend walked over to this other gal and said, “I’m going to slap that lipstick right off your face”.

A drunk man’s words are a sober man’s thoughts.

I heard a man say, “I used to know how to dress until I got married”.

Editor’s note: The views expressed here are the author’s own and do not represent the view of The Penny News. Jerry Nine, Woodward, Oklahoma, is a lifetime cattleman who grew up on his family’s ranch near Slapout, Oklahoma.

The April 17th cattle on feed report indicated a 1% year over year decline in cattle with 11.6 million head on feed. This aligns with the expectation of tight supplies. March placements were 1.71 million head down 7% from 2025 while marketings fell 6% to 1.63 million head. Both of these marked the lowest totals for March since 1996.

The latest steer carcass weights were 2 pounds lower at 981 pounds. But that is still 32 pounds above year ago levels. Most feedlots are feeding cattle a lot of extra days as the cost of gain is a lot cheaper than the price of the fat animal ready for slaughter. Choice beef was quoted only $4.00 higher than select as far as boxed beef with choice quoted at $381.57.

We desperately need rain over a very big area. I was joking with some this morning saying, “I would like to sell you my wheat crop for you to bale”. Then we laughed trying to decide how you could even come up with one bale over the whole field. One said, “Well if you could get a lot of dirt in the bale”. I said, “You would have to find a bottom area of grass with last year’s weeds”. Anyway, I might as well laugh about it. But it is expensive to get very little or no wheat pasture after investing that much in crops. There is some wheat 20 miles away that they are laying down to bale. Hopefully more as it is always nice to have extra hay around.

This past week we made contract highs in live cattle and feeder cattle futures.

This past week there was a string of light weight calves black and black white face off of first calf heifers. One set of heifers weighed 145 pounds and brought $1,450.00 per head. 51 head of bull calves weighing 226 brought

Burns Flat–Dill City Schools Facing Budget Deficit, Considering Cuts

Considering Cuts

April 20, 2026 • Burns Flat, OK — Burns Flat–Dill City Public Schools officials say the district is facing a projected budget deficit driven by multiple financial pressures, prompting a review of staffing, programs, and overall operations.

In a letter dated April 13, Superintendent Jamie Matuszewski outlined three main factors contributing to the shortfall.

The first is a loss of $413,233.52 in ad valorem revenue tied to a windmill valuation protest. District leaders said the issue has impacted other Oklahoma schools as well, particularly those connected to energy sector valuations.

The second factor is the expiration of federal ESSER funds, often referred to as the “ESSER cliff.” These pandemic-era funds had supported staffing, programs, and student services in recent years. The district estimates a loss of $379,000 as those funds expire.

The third issue is declining student enrollment. The district reported enrollment has dropped from 681 students in 2015 to 461 currently, a decrease of 220 students. Because school funding is closely tied to enrollment, the decline has significantly reduced available revenue.

As a result, district leadership said it is now evaluating cost-saving measures. Potential steps could include reductions in staff through attrition, adjustments or cuts to certain programs and services, and reprioritizing resources to focus on core instructional needs.

Officials emphasized that no decisions have been made lightly and that the priority remains maintaining quality education while minimizing the impact on students.

The district is currently conducting a comprehensive review of its budget and staffing, while also assessing program sustainability and effectiveness. Leaders say they are committed to transparency and open communication with staff and families as decisions move forward.

Despite the financial challenges, the district expressed confidence in its ability to navigate the situation through planning and community collaboration.

School officials indicated that difficult decisions may be necessary in the coming months as they work to address the deficit and stabilize long-term operations.

Elk City Lawmaker Raises Concerns Over Deer Release Program, Agency Inaction

April 20, 2026 • Elk City, OK — State Rep. Nick Archer says a lack of coordination and follow-through between state agencies has led to the release of captive-raised deer into the wild without a formal program or scientific framework in place.

Speaking on “Today in Ag with Jimmy Clark,” Archer discussed House Bill 3462, also known as the Chronic Wasting Disease Act, passed in 2024 with near-unanimous support. The legislation aimed to explore genetic resistance in deer to combat chronic wasting disease, commonly referred to as CWD.

According to Archer, the bill directed the Oklahoma Department of Wildlife Conservation and the Oklahoma Department of Agriculture to collect at least 1,000 deer samples and develop a structured study. The goal was to identify genetic traits that could make deer more resistant to CWD and other diseases such as EHD and blue tongue.

“The intent was to build a scientific program first,” Archer said. “Then determine if and when releasing genetically favorable animals would make sense.”

However, Archer claims that process never materialized. Instead, he said between two and six captive-raised deer have already been released into the wild despite no formal study, rules, or oversight program being established.

Archer attributes the breakdown to what he described as “inaction” by the Wildlife Department, which he says failed to complete required sample collection and did not analyze genetic data already in its possession.

“At one point, they had the data for a month and couldn’t answer basic questions about it,” Archer said.

He also alleged conflict between the two agencies, stating the Agriculture Department’s efforts to develop rules were halted after the Wildlife Department threatened legal action.

The situation has raised concerns among landowners and outdoorsmen, particularly regarding how released deer would be tracked or regulated. Archer noted that currently, there are no rules requiring testing for diseases like EHD or blue tongue prior to release.

“There are no rules. There is no formal study. And these animals are already out there,” he said.

The original legislation was designed to provide an alternative to traditional “depopulation” methods used when CWD is detected, which often involve eliminating entire herds within a defined radius.

Archer said he believes relying solely on depopulation is not a long-term solution and that emerging science suggests selective breeding for natural genetic resistance could strengthen herds over time.

Still, he emphasized that any such approach must be guided by data and a structured program.

“We need the study before we move forward with something like this,” Archer said.

As for next steps, Archer said new legislation this session aims to shift responsibility entirely to the Agriculture Department, citing more productive discussions on how a regulated program could be implemented. Potential measures could include radio tracking, regional guidelines, and genetic benchmarks for participation.

While western Oklahoma currently maintains a healthy deer population, Archer noted that conditions vary across the state, and any long-term solution must account for those differences.

“We can’t assume all 77 counties are the same,” he said.

The issue remains under debate at the Capitol as lawmakers, agencies, and stakeholders continue to weigh the balance between science, conservation, and policy.

Sedation Dentistry Calms Fears...
Take a pill and snooze through your dental appointment.

For many Americans, going to the dentist is a frightful event. If you are one of the 145 million people who avoid the dentist due to fear, we have the solution... Sedation Dentistry.

You can now experience your dental appointment through a totally relaxed and comfortable environment. With the help of Sedation Dentistry, you will wake up to find that your dental appointment is over and the restorations have been completed painlessly.

For those with a busy schedule, we can accomplish more dentistry in one appointment which means fewer visits to the dentist.

Sedation Dentistry is available for everything from simple restoration to the most complex procedures. We are very sensitive to our patients needs, especially those with high fear and apprehension. Now we can put an end to anxiety with this safe and wonderful technique of sedation.

We are proud to be able to offer Sedation Dentistry and offer hope to those who have been avoiding the dentist due to fear. If you would like to know more, call our team with your questions.
